Brief Summary of Theoretical Approach:

I WILL CIRCLE THE SERVICE YOU ARE PLANNING ON PARTAKING IN BELOW.

THE CIRCLED ITEM WOULD BE THE ONLY ONE OF NUMBERS 1-3 THAT YOU SHOULD NEED TO READ!

1) Trauma-informed yoga is my training background and is infused into all my classes and one-on-one yoga therapy.

Trauma-informed yoga is a somatic treatment that helps reset the nervous system, helps you reconnect with your body and regain a sense of control. This increases your capacity to be present in the here and now.

How is trauma-informed yoga different?

- The classes use transformational language encouraging the release of judgement, expectations, and competition. This invites people back into their bodies, not forcefully or demanding because only they can know when and where to feel more in the pose. If pushed too far, too fast, we can actually trigger the fight or flight mode.
- Slower mindful movement to awaken the emotional or limbic center of the mind combined with creating a safe space for the trauma survivor to heal.
- Soothing/parasympathetic nervous system activating types of breathing practices to stimulate the vagus nerve. The vagus nerve stretches from the brainstem all the way into the belly, carrying incoming information from the nervous system to the brain. Literally the mind-body connection, it's the cabling behind your "gut instincts", governing things like the heart rate, digestion, sweating and skeletal muscles.
- Physical focus on the psoas (the fight or flight muscle) and grounding postures to help release the allostatic load (wear and tear) of traumas stored in the body.
- Meditation and imagery are also used to balance the mind and body, creating a buffer of positive emotions.

This class is for: Anyone looking to drop stress from their physical body and their minds to improve well-being and vitality.

2) Reiki Therapy:

Reiki is a Japanese word meaning "spiritual energy" or "universal life-force-energy," and in Japan it is used to describe any form of therapy that uses spiritual energy. Reiki is a Japanese energy healing technique used to maintain wellbeing, reduce pain, stress & depression and stimulate the body's natural healing abilities.

We have a physical body surrounded by an energy field. When we become unwell physically, emotionally or mentally this has an unbalancing effect on our energy field. A Reiki Therapist channels energy through his or her hands and by the gentle placement of hands on the physical body (or just above it) facilitates the rebalancing of the energy field which in turn may ease symptoms physically, mentally and emotionally. Reiki is one of the tools we can use to help achieve optimum health. I have attained levels 1-3 of the Oshun Reiki method of Energetic Healing. Reiki Therapy includes Gem Stone Therapy, Chakra Alignment, Sound therapy and Aromatherapy.

Reiki therapy can be used to assist in:

- Anxiety management
- As a pain management strategy
- As a supportive measure through unpleasant and/or painful procedures
- To reduce chemotherapy/radiotherapy gut disturbance
- To engender a sense of control
- To enhance compliance with treatment regimens
- To enhance coping

- To enhance the immune response
- To improve quality of life
- To increase self-esteem & confidence
- To assist the patient in the dying process

3) For Ayurveda Consultations:

Ayurveda is a sister science to Yoga. It literally translates to the “Science of Life” and incorporates all aspects of health—physically, emotionally, mentally, and spiritually. Ayurveda is a Vedic Science that’s a 5000 year old traditional science designed to bring the body back to balance in order to heal from within. It incorporates nutrition, lifestyle, breath practices and more to bring you to balance—mind, body, and spirit.

Rather than looking at and “fixing” symptoms, Ayurveda looks at the whole person and seeks to balance areas that are out of kilter. Removing the imbalances goes to the root cause vs. just applying a bandage to the symptoms.

If you give the body what it needs to balance, it will heal itself naturally. Our bodies want to heal. It is our body’s nature to heal. We just have to give it the tools it needs for balance.

In Ayurveda, the whole universe is an interplay of the energies of the five elements—earth, water, fire, air, and ether or space. These are the building blocks.

Ayurveda groups the five elements into three basic types of energies that define every person’s makeup, and are present everywhere, called the “Three Doshas”. We all have a mix of all three. The Three Doshas, or energetic personality types as I like to refer to them, are:

- Vata—comprised of Air and Space
- Pitta—comprised of Fire and Water
- Kapha—comprised of Earth and Water.

We start by assessing your “essential nature” known in Ayurveda as “Prakruti”. What characteristics and preferences have you had for most of the decades of your life?

Looking at your diet, lifestyle, and stress management, as an Ayurveda Health Counselor I will help determine what both your current and balanced body/energy type/dosha is using questioning, quizzes, pulse checks, tongue analysis, and food journals. Together we will determine simple tools to help bring you back to balance using the theory of “opposite qualities heal”.
